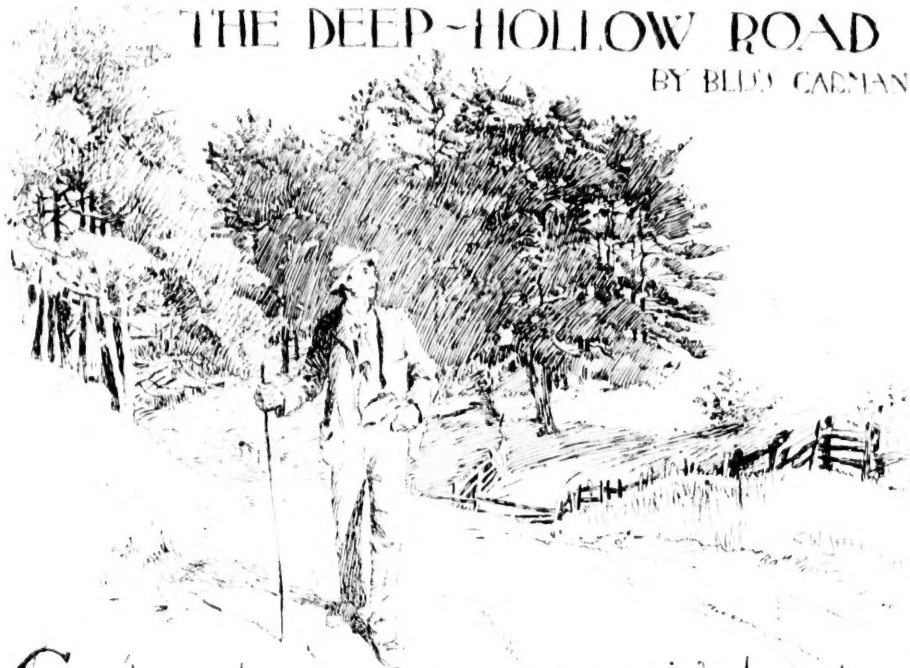
THE DEEP-HOLLOW ROAD

BY BLISS CARMAN



Cool in the summer mountain's heart,
It lies in dim mysterious shade,
Left of the highway turning in
With gravy rut and easy grade.

The marshes and the sea behind,
The solemn fir-blue hills before;
Here is the inn for Heavy-heart
And this is weary Free-foot's door.

O fellows, I have known it long;
For joy of life turn in with me,
We bivouac with peace to-night,
And good-bye to the brawling sea.

You hear? That's master thrush. He knows
The voluntaries fit for June,
And when to falter on the flute
In the satiety of noon.

A mile or two we follow in
His rosy streak through forest gloom,
Then for the apple orchard slopes
And all the earth one snowy bloom!
